Call for General Applications –Natural Resource Technicians

GWA invites general applications of interest.

If you have knowledge of the Gitksan Territory as well as a technical background or education related to natural resource sciences – We would love to hear from you.

For almost three decades, Gitksan Watershed Authorities (GWA) have been doing natural resource research and monitoring to inform management. We play a key role in collecting fish stock assessment and fish habitat information within the Gitksan traditional territories. Our administration and field offices are in Kispiox which support a variety of interesting projects.

As these projects evolve, we anticipate needing those with leadership and initiative that have shown interest in working and learning in this field. By knowing your interest, we may also be able to contact you with relevant career development information or opportunities including local training or workshops.

What do we look for?

- Keen interest in developing technical and leadership capacity in natural resources field
- Ability to work effectively, positively, and as a team in field and office
- Communications and computer skills
- Team members that will adhere to corporate policies, operate through the proper management channels, and act in the best interest of the company
- Valid driver's license/Acceptable motor vehicle record
- Ability to work on a variety of support tasks - some in the office and some physically demanding, outside in adverse weather conditions, around fast moving water, aircraft and wildlife
- Assets would include hands-on experience identifying and biologically sampling both juvenile and adult salmon, experience in data management, field supervising and boat operating experience.

To submit a general application: Please send a resume with an introduction letter to marj@gitksanwatershed.com
